THE 7 HABITS

of Highly Effective
Shluchos

HANDBOOK

Dear Shluchos,

We are truly excited to present to you today's session "The 7 Habits of Highly Effective Shluchos" and this accompanying handbook.

You know how it is when you're working on something. It's always just sitting there on the back burner of your mind, influencing your thought processes, even when you're not actively working on it.

So it's been in preparing this session. As we found the speakers, and worked on the ideas, we really found these habits start to become part of our lives in a real way. And we got excited by the difference that it made. In an effort to make the habits easier to implement, the handbook contains practical tips, supporting articles, and creative ideas from many sister shluchos from around the world, to make these 7 Habits a real part of your life.

We hope you enjoy!

ברוקלין.

שלום וברכה!

מאשר הנני קבלת מכתבו מיי"א שבת (והקודמו) וממהר הנני לענות עליו
שלא בתור אפילו של מכתבים התכופים מפני ענין הזריקות לחיסון, אף
שלפלא שאלתו בזה שהרי כמה מאה"ק כבר שאלוני ועניתי להם בחיוב כיון
שכאן עושים זה רובם ככולם ובהצלחה, ומובן שבאם ישנם זריקות מתוצרת
בתי סממני רפואה שונים צריך להשתמש בו הבדוקה ומנוסה.

תי"ח על הבשוי"ט מהטבת מצב בריאות הו"ח אי"א מו"ה . . . ולפלא
שבעצמו לא הודיע עדיין, והרי זהו אחד האופנים בקיום מצות ואהבת לרעך
כמוך ע"י שמשמחים לב איש הישראלי בבשורה טובה ובפרט זה שהודיע
מקודם ע"ד המצב שלפני הטפול, וק"ל, וכנראה שפתגם רבנו הזקן אשר
ואהבת לרעך כמוך היא כלי וגם חד עם ואהבת את ה' אלקיך, עדיין לא חדר
לכל החוגים.

ומענין לענין באותו ענין, במ"ש אודות היחסים שבין . . . שגם זה
הסתעפות משלילת הציווי ר"ל של ואהבת לרעך כמוך, ואין עדיין ביטוי חריף
זה מספיק לחשיבות הענין ולהתוצאות שלו, וע"פ מה שכבר כתבתי כ"פ
הבטחת הכתוב כמים הפנים לפנים כן לב האדם לאדם אין הכתוב מחלק מי
לראשונה משנה לבו, וכל הקודם זכה בכלל גדול בתורה כמאמר רבי עקיבא
הידוע בזה, ובהעשות מרכבה לשני הואהבת שחד הוא ע"פ פתגם רבנו הזקן
האמור, וכידוע שבעשות מצוה נעשה האדם מרכבה למצוה זו, וכמבואר
בכ"מ ומהם בספר התניא, ואין להאריך בדבר הכי פשוט . . .

בברכה המצפה לבשוי"ט.

Loose translation:

Thank you for the good news. It's a wonder that you didn't tell me on your own! This is one of the ways to fulfill the mitzvah of ואהבת לרעך כמוך, through making another yid happy by sharing good news. Specifically when you let them know about the situation beforehand.

(אגרות קודש חלק י"ד)

#ShluchosShare

When I write, I'll usually include any recent or past programs/events and any new mitzvos ..and then I write about what's coming up, include any challenges, any members of our community who need Brachos, and personal stuff.

When I do write, I am so much more focused on the important parts of shlichus, I feel more confident and secure-not alone- and I see more success in my shlichus. In general, I feel events run more smoothly, have a great atmosphere, and people enjoy more when one of us writes.

We met with the superintendent of the public schools here about running our after school program in a public school. She was very nice and said "Sure, but there will be a cost and I'll get back to you." We came home, wrote to the Rebbe and a few days later she emailed saying we can use it for free. We run a Jewish after school enrichment program every week in the public school, and it's really a secret that we are using it for free! The churches have to rent it...

We did a Chanukah event in one of our zip codes and the community manager really helped us. We bought a gift for him but life was too busy and we forgot to drop it off. Summer came and we were planning our next Chanukah and remembered we still didn't give him his gift and it was time to ask again for next year. My husband emailed him that he would like to meet and he answered very abruptly that he would like to meet as well.

#ShluchosShare

My husband was worried he was upset about something, so of course, he wrote to the Rebbe before he went.

He greeted my husband with a big hug, all while telling him how important he is to this community and began to ask him to put up a menorah and a Chanuka booth at one of their biggest events of the year (a holiday glow fair) and he's not Jewish!

In the end, they also programmed their holiday light show over their water park to Chanukah music for us for our event for free (costs thousands) and let us use their facilities, and more!

you know that moment when you just can't figure out what to do about...so you pick up the phone and call your mother. When

I call my mother, after all the practical advice she gives me, what my mother says is "sit down and write to the Rebbe". My husband has taught me how valuable this is, particularly in our life of Shlichus. Every Friday without fail, after mitzvot, he sits down and writes a Duch, updating the Rebbe on how things are progressing in our Shlichus. So, being that I have wonderful people to guide me and follow, I try my best to do the same. I don't know if I'm extremely busy, as many of you are, and being that we are still in the beginning stages of our Shlichus, possibly it's easier, but I do hope to continue this forever.

#ShluchosShare

Before any event, just like I write down on my list to go shopping, prepare the décor, set up, send the emails, phone calls and write facebook posts, on the top of that list goes: Learn chitas and write a pan the day of the event; that the event should be Bhtzelecha Rabba umuflaga and bring yidden closer to yiddeshkeit. Sometimes, I'll even mention about being nervous about so and so, or about some sort of halachik issue that came up and that we should be guided properly. My point is, that no matter what, there's always something to write. It's hard, I know....

A respected Mashpia was once asked "Why do I need to write to the Rebbe? yes I understand that the Rebbe wants to hear about everything, but doesn't the Rebbe know everything anyway?!" His answer was, "yes, the Rebbe knows, yet writing a 1"5 is for you, for your Avoda, and quite an Avoda it is!" Exercising and eating healthy is a hard avodah too, but when you work at it, you see the affects it has. After that 1"5 gets written, one feels so relieved, and thinks "Ok, I'm gonna do my best now, I have the Rebbe's brachos, it's all going to be ok."

Send your letters to the Rebbe via:

Fax: 718.723.4444

Email: ohel@ohelchabad.org

Be Passionate

The Rebbe once encouraged a man to use his talents to the fullest. At a subsequent meeting, the Rebbe said, "I hope you are fulfilling what we discussed. Don't turn me into a sinner!"

Taken aback, the man asked, "How could I do that?"

"Our sages teach," the Rebbe responded, "'that whoever engages in excessive talk bring on sin.' If our conversation led to no practical outcome, it was merely 'excessive talk.'"

Ideas for utilizing your passion

Dancing:

Turning on music and dancing with your kids. It's a great work-out, stress reliever, and so much fun!

Have a women's program with a dance instructor (or you!) followed by snacks and discussion. You can also do Israeli dance, simcha dancing, or more formal dancing, depending on what will appeal to your crowd.

Take a class at <http://www.free-online-art-classes.com>.
Make this a part of your self-care routine.

Check out Aleph Art Room for a great way to incorporate this talent into your shlichus. (While you're there, check out other ways you can express your creativity in so many types of events - including those just for your kids)

Have a playroom? Paint a mural on the wall!
Make sure your home-schooling includes lots of crafts...it will help you enjoy!

DRAW/paint the flyers for some of your events (instead of making them on the computer). At the very least, include hand-made art on your computer-made flyer.

Fine Arts:

Have a women's karaoke night
- make it a monthly/annual event that you can look forward to.

Take the time to sing to your children at night.

Record yourself singing things you'd like your children to learn: Tanya, Yahadus basics, etc. Younger children will enjoy listening and learn in the process.

Incorporate lots of music in your kids programs, camp, Mommy-and-Me, etc.

Cooking/baking:

If you enjoy it, spend the time doing it!
Take the time to make something that you don't need to, just for your own (or your kids') enjoyment!

Make Torah & Tea your go-to Torah class, make your baked good/delicious treats an attraction that people (including you!) look forward to.

Use baking/cooking as a draw for children's or women's events. If you love it, live it!

Make delivering Challah/bikkur bayis the hallmark of your shlichus. It's a great way to connect with new people!

Singing:

Writing:

Keep a journal for your kids - there are so many variations of this, choose what works for you! Some include:

Have a separate journal for each child. On their birthday (or when you have free time, yeah right!) write what's going on in their life, some accomplishments, what they've been up to. Give it to them when they're older, or write it together with them.

Keep a journal for yourself.

Keep a gratitude journal. (Write one nice thing before you go to sleep each day).

Start a writing club in your community!

Send out a "weekly thought" email instead of (or as well as) a weekly Parsha class. (Even better, offer it to Shluchos, too!)

Write cards to people in honor of yom tov and send them in mail. (The rarity of it is sure to draw their attention)

Counseling:

Find other ladies (even it's just 1 or 2) who also play and get together to make some music! What a great way to bond!

Take the time to hone your music skills! There are plenty of online-lessons available.

Play for your children.

Playing music:

Pursue a life-coaching or chaplaincy certification to give you tools to incorporate in your shlichus

Make hospital visitation a part of your routine. A twist on this is providing breakfast/dinner for new mothers or delivering newborn packages in the maternity ward.

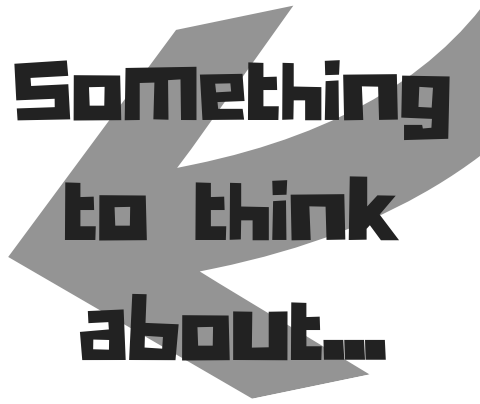

Take your kids or people in your community to visit the old-age home

Entertaining:

With any passion, consider finding a partner—Shlucha whose talents are different than yours and doing a trade – you'll prepare her menus, she'll prepare your Hebrew school class. You'll plan her camp schedule, she'll design your flyers. We're all good at different things, and not only is that OK, but it means that we all have something to offer each other!

Put effort into your Shabbos table. Take the time to make it pretty with centerpieces, interesting napkin design, plating your food nicely, etc. Make Shabbos the center of your week.

Loose translation:

It's appropriate to make you aware that the running of a home in general, and the interaction between a man and wife, depends much more on the wife than it does on the husband. Like it says in Tanach: חכמת נשים בנתה ביתה: the building and the maintenance of the home, depends on the wisdom of the wife. Especially here in America, where the work of the husband is connected with a lot of rushing and nervous stress, the responsibility of the wife is even greater to make sure that between the two of them there is the maximum amount of shalom, through the maximum amount of understanding from the wife.

(אגרות קודש חלק ט)

Dr. Ira Weiss, a cardiologist who treated both the Rebbe and his wife, Rebbetzin Chaya Mushka, enjoyed a close relationship with both of them. The Rebbe once shared a personal anecdote with the physician: "The time I devote to have tea with my wife every day is as important to me as the obligation to put on tefillin every day." (Seeds of Wisdom Vol. I)

34 Stay At Home Date Night Ideas

1. Play the newlywed (or the not-so-newlywed) game 2. Do a puzzle together. 3. Learn something together 4. Pull out old photo albums/go to the archives on your phone and take a trip down memory lane. 5. Prepare your husband's favorite dinner and create an in house restaurant. 6. Cook dinner together or cook anything really! (You can always freeze what you make) Some fun (and simple) ideas are: making pizza, cookies, hot dogs with lots of toppings, sushi, popcorn with different toppings, ice cream sundaes (or make the ice cream!) etc. 7. Watch your wedding video. 8. Enjoy a cup of tea/coffee together on the couch. 9. Have a breakfast date after you send the kids to school. 10. Pause in middle of the work day for a lunch date. 11. Choose a book you both enjoy and take turns reading to each other. 12. Start a "family story" journal - write (or video) funny or inspiring stories that have happened to you/your family. You can go back to watch these on future date-nights or share them with your kids. Another twist on this idea is to each take 10-15 minutes to write family memories (either on the same topic, or anything random that comes to mind) and then share them once you're both done. 13. Similar to #12. Each make a list of 10 things you appreciate about the other, and share them once you're done. 14.. Live in a snowy place? There's got to be something good about the cold! 15. Go outside and build a snowman! 16. Play board games 17. Do a craft together - whether a DIY home improvement project, or just something creative like painting a canvas. 18. Take an online lesson together - for a new language, an instrument, something techie, anything really. 19. Make a bucket/travel/micro-adventure list (whether or not you actually plan to do the things on your list, it's fun to make!) 20. Roast marshmallows (no need for a bonfire, you can use your stove top or even a tea light!) 21. Discuss what you'd like to see life looking like in the next 5, 10, 15 years. 22. Plan your next vacation (dream or real!) 23. Play charades! Take turns acting out family memories, family members, things that your spouse does, etc. 24. If you're lucky enough to live near a restaurant (or organized enough to have meals prepped in the freezer) eat take-out by candlelight.

34 Stay At Home Date Night Ideas

25. Have a backyard/front yard/on-your-porch picnic. 26. Watch a class/lecture together - Chabad.org, TorahCafe, there are so many options. If you want to be super fancy, you can prepare little snacks for yourselves and pretend that someone prepared the event just for you. (You can do the same with the video of a concert!) 27. Play the first word game: write words on slips of paper; take turns drawing a word and talking about the first thing that comes to mind when you see it. 28. Play a video/phone/tablet game together (WordsWithFriends, etc.) watch or edit home movies together. 29. Make a video, scrapbook, or journal for your children. 30. Sit down and actually learn how to use a gadget or piece of software—learn all the settings on your camera, find the best apps for your phone or iPad, etc. 31. Make a family tree together. 32. Go on a scavenger hunt. It doesn't matter how small your home is. A solid scavenger hunt just requires smart clues and a talent for identifying good hiding places. It's almost as much fun to craft the hints as it is to watch each other unravel the custom mystery step by step. 33. The $10 gifting competition. Sit side-by-side on the couch with your laptops and see who can find the best present for the other with a budget of $10 and exactly ten minutes to surf the web. You don't even have to purchase the items for this to be fun, not to mention good gift giving practice. 34. Skype call a couple, or friends from your community who have moved away.

Many of these ideas can be adapted as family activities to be enjoyed with your children.

Take one minute at the end of each day to write one thing you appreciate about each other in a designated journal. You'll create a beautiful keepsake

A Day of Healthy Eating

You make sure that your children and husband are well fed (and probably your whole community too!), but what about you?! Make sure to eat three healthy meals every day. Here are some ideas for you.

Breakfast Ideas:

- Oatmeal + cottage cheese + fresh fruit-
- Greek yogurt + granola-
- Eggs, any which way + fresh veggies + whole grain toast-

BREAKFAST MUFFINS

Make a double batch of these healthy & delicious breakfast muffins and store the extras in your freezer. Pop them out as you need them for a quick and filling breakfast. Bonus: the kids LOVE them!

~Recipe from Shaina Richler~

3 ripe bananas (mashed), 1 cup vanilla almond milk, 2 eggs, 1 Tbsp baking powder, 3 cups old fashioned rolled oats, 1 tsp vanilla extract, 3 Tbsp chocolate chips
Combine all ingredients. Place in lined or greased muffin tin. Bake at 375 for 20-30 minutes.

Lunch Ideas:

- Whole grain sandwich (tuna, egg, cheese, avocado, meat)-
- A salad with the works: bulk up your salad with different proteins. Some good options are tuna, chickpeas, feta cheese, chicken. Nothing is off limits-get creative!-

ROASTED CHICKPEA SALAD

1 (15 oz) can of chickpeas, rinsed well and drained, 1 Tbsp olive oil, 1/2 tsp ground cumin, 1/2 tsp chili powder, 1/4 tsp Cayenne pepper, 1/4 tsp sea salt

Preheat oven to 400 F (205 C). Line a baking sheet with with aluminum foil. Place chickpeas in a bowl, add olive oil, cumin, chili powder, cayenne pepper and salt. Toss well, making sure chickpeas are evenly covered with spices.

Spread chickpeas in an even layer over baking sheet and bake for 30 minutes, until they are crisp.

Let them cool, before you add them to the salad.

FOR THE MEDITERRANEAN SALAD:

4 cups romaine lettuce, chopped (or any lettuce of your choice), 1 cup cherry tomatoes, halved, 2-3 large roasted red peppers, 1 small english cucumber, cut into cubes, 2 scallions, chopped, 1/4 cup crumbled Feta cheese, 1/4 cup Kalamata olives

DRESSING:

salt, pepper to taste, 1/4 cup olive oil, 2-3 Tbsp vinegar (apple cider or white)

Combine salad ingredients. Add cooled roasted chickpeas. Toss with olive oil and vinegar. Add salt and pepper to taste.

~Recipe from Lyubomira from CookingLSL~

Dinner Ideas:

The trick: don't overthink it! Fresh & simple is quick & healthy!

-Milk dinner: substitute spaghetti squash for your favorite pasta recipe-

-Meat dinner: Roast chicken, rice, & salad-

Season bone-in chicken with some olive oil and spices of your choice. Serve with rice and a fresh salad for a super quick and healthy dinner.

TUNA PATTIES

2 (12 oz) cans tuna, 2/3 cups matzo meal, 1/4 cup mayo,
4 eggs, 1/2 tsp garlic powder, 1/2 tsp onion powder, 1/2
tsp minced onion, 1/2 tsp fine sea salt

Combine all ingredients and lightly pan fry.

-I try to leave my phone in my room between 4 and 8 PM when the kids are home.

-I turn off wifi when my kids are around. I do not have any data on my phone otherwise. Anything urgent, I hear the phone ring. It's really hard to do on your own. I did it with a friend and it was easier.

-If you have an android, they have a u-power saving mode. I turn that on sometimes and it is restricted to calls and texts and u can add 2 more apps. I have whatsapp.... I will hear calls and texts and whatsapp only if I choose to open it. They won't show me that they are coming through.... Sarah

- Some things I did: 1) Deleted Facebook from my app for few months. Made MASSIVE difference. Will be deleting it again soon. 2) I also have my phone permanently on silent and emails set that they don't beep when come in (I have to actively refresh the app to get them). 3) I also have all whatsapp groups on silent and don't get any notifications of posts in them. Deleted myself from a number of groups too. 4) Recently, my phone is set to wifi only so when I'm not home, phone is only good for text and calls. 5) My phone goes upstairs when I'm focusing on the kids. Everyone else can wait!

-Sometimes, when you leave the house, don't take your phone with you. Nothing's gonna happen! And it feels so good!

-Get old, stop caring what anyone else in the world is doing or has to say. Seriously- the only thing that beeps on my phone normally is the ringer. Everything else is on vibrate, whatsapp groups on silent. And my fancy phone lets me set hours where even if i forget to turn off the sounds for the texts and emails, it has do not disturb times. ~Shaina Rosenfeld

1. Delete FB app 2. I keep my phone on silent most of the time (and I miss calls but so what, I call back when it's convenient for me) 3. I try my best to put my phone away when I'm focusing on the kids (which is tough because we home school so kids are with me most of the time) 4. We do not ever bring our phones into our bedrooms at night. 5. you can set your phone to only allow calls and texts or turn on flight mode ~Rachel Gordon

-1. Get a house line that family knows 2. Everything on silent besides calls being that usually people don't call. If it's ringing, it may be something time pressing, so worth a check and otherwise only go my phone to catch up on whatsapp, read msgs and email when I'm not doing anything else. Or need to chill before starting another thing... Not that I'm a pro but this is how I set myself up not to be attached.

-I have an old flip phone. Sometimes its really annoying, but if you do this, buy a good GPS. But in general, its been almost 2 years and definitely worth it. I have a computer in my house, so I still end up working on it way too much, but at least when I can't (like when my kids get home) I can just shut it and nothing can distract me. ~C.M. Ceitlin

Embrace

A shlucha who was overwhelmed with her many duties wrote to the Rebbe, describing her feelings of inadequacy. She concluded with the words, "I feel like I'm one big mess." In response, the Rebbe sent back her letter with the following comment on the bottom: "It's obvious that you and your husband have succeeded in your holy work beyond any conceivable expectation, and you call this" - here the Rebbe drew an arrow pointing to the words he had circled: 'one big mess?!' -
