

Different Ways to Say Thank You

Below is a list of suggestions of possible ways to say thank you after a donation. We collected this from various places and edited it for suitable use. The duplications were left in to show the strength of the idea. This list is not inclusive, but as so many Shluchim struggle with additional ways to show thanks – we thought this might be interesting to share with everyone.

- Invite them to participate in events.
- Acknowledgement letters, personal thank you calls within 48 hours
- Thank you calls made by those who benefited from the program
- Send the donor a personal note thanking them for joining you
- Student written notes
- Send a thank you letter to attendees, perhaps including a few survey questions
- Thank-a-thon
- Phone call to thank specifically
- Recognize giving levels appropriately
- Send newsletter-with a note attached
- Follow up with a sincere letter detailing what happened to their gift
- Send a card, send an article they might enjoy, photo of family at an event
- Handwritten thank you
- Let donors know what their donation funded or is currently funding
- Send a gift
- After sending a detailed report of what happened with their last gift, ask for honest feedback about their interests with the Moisad and then invite them to talk more about what THEY are interested in funding.
- Donor profile in newsletter
- Send detailed outline of where the last gift and next gift will go
- Follow up with call to them in a day or two -- thanking them their gift and begin discussion about their interests
- Recognize via donor clubs
- Naming (if applicable)
- Thank you event
